What I was hoping for,
but never eventuated.

11/03/2020

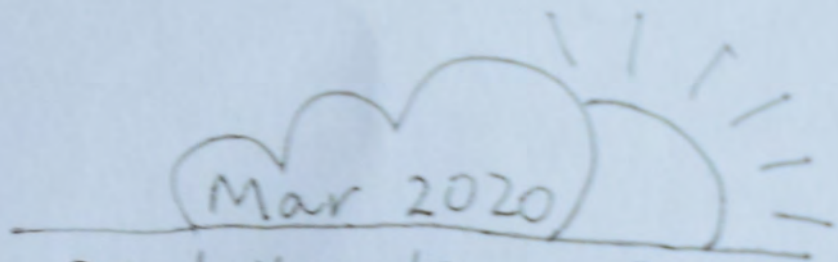

Dear Reader,

It's Wednesday in my first week of honours. It's been a bit of a shock to be studying again, even if all my classes this week were online because of coronavirus. I haven't been able to log into the new parking app my uni is forcing on us, so I'm lowkey scared I'll get a ticket for parking on campus next week, even though I've paid for a permit. Additionally, I'm scared to meet my cohort officially (we introduced ourselves on a skype call but it wasn't the same). What if they don't like me? What if I don't like them? I have my first meeting with my supervisor on Friday! I already know her. She taught some of my other units. She's bi and quite funny. I hope we can work well together. Everything is a bit uncertain right now. I'm sure that one month in I'll be feeling much more settled, but for now I'm not having the easiest time keeping it together. I'm panic-studying, which is when I'm not sure what to do so I overprepare in too many areas and waste a lot of time and energy. If I calm down, I can focus on what I need to do and do that.. Or not.

Ciao

This zine was made on the stolen land of the Bunerong people of the Kulin nations. Sovereignty was never ceded.

Did you know?

Beijing, Seoul and Tokyo
all mean 'capital'
in their respective languages.
